Howard Carter was an Question 1 archaeologist who was born in London in 1874.

In ancient Egypt, the remains of the kings and queens were buried deep underground in an Question 2 known as the Valley of the Kings.. At the beginning of the 1900s, most archaeologists were convinced that all of these royal burial sites had been unearthed, but Howard Carter believed that there was still one more important discovery to be found - that of King Tutankhamun. Howard Carter made it his mission to find this secret tomb.

Carter began searching for Tutankhamun’s tomb in 1914, and in 1922, Lord Carnarvon - who was funding the project - told him that he would withdraw financial support if Carter failed to achieve a Question 3 result. Three days after this, a Question 4 who was helping out at the dig dislodged a Question 5 which moved to reveal a Question 6 staircase. This staircase would eventually lead to one of the most significant discoveries in history...

Carter and his team worked meticulously around the staircase and eventually uncovered a Question 7 that carried the royal sign of King Tutankhamun. Carter wasted no time and immediately sent an Question 8 telegram to Lord Carnarvon to announce that he had found a Question 9 tomb. Lord Carnarvon immediately made arrangements to travel - with his daughter Evelyn - to Egypt.

Two weeks later, Carter, Lord Carnarvon, and Evelyn entered the tomb. Carter chiselled a Question 10 in the wall and held out a Question 11 to peer into the darkness. They immediately grew very silent.

The three of them were astonished to discover that the tomb had remained untouched and was full of an Question 12 amount of treasure, including a solid gold coffin.
